Definitions	The Teaching and Learning Methodologies policy at the university encompasses a comprehensive framework outlining the pedagogical approaches and instructional techniques employed by faculty members to effectively nurture and enhance the educational experiences of students.
Purpose	This policy advocates for the adoption of optimal instructional methods and seeks to establish a uniform standard of excellence in teaching and learning throughout the university's academic programs. Its primary objective is to guarantee that every student receives top-tier educational experiences that culminate in exceptional academic accomplishments.
Scope	This policy applies to all AAU University faculty members.
Statement	These methods and strategies are in relation to the characteristic of the learner, the type of learning it is supposed to bring about, and the nature of the course.
Procedures	Before the commencement of each academic semester, faculty members carefully choose the endorsed teaching and learning methodologies listed in the syllabus portal. These methods undergo a rigorous evaluation by the College Council and QAIRC, who offer constructive feedback to faculty members regarding potential suggestions and improvements.
